

Prevention, Education & Training

The College offers regular programs of prevention and ongoing education and awareness for all students and employees. Employees on the Rhodes State College Title IX Team who play a key role in implementing the policy, including those staff who are likely to receive reports of sexual misconduct, receive more in-depth annual training to ensure a timely, sensitive, respectful, and effective institutional response.

All students and employees will be provided with education in prevention and awareness of sexual misconduct upon start and annually.

For more information on prevention programming and training, please contact the Title IX Office by email at goings.a@RhodesState.edu
